Precision and Power

They Fly 80-Ton Bombers

From the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Los Angeles, comes some startling figures on the power and precision packed into the engines which fly the war machines of today. America's automobile-minded public is used to reading amazing figures—but none like the latest about giant airplanes.

One of the new airplane motors developed for the largest bombers is the Wright Cyclone. This engine has 14 cylinders and develops 1,750 horsepower. A four-cylinder motor would command 7,000 horsepower—one cylinder in one motor alone developing 125 horsepower, or more than the entire output of the average automobile engine.

The new B-19 bomber now nearing completion in the Douglas factory in California holds 11,000 gallons of gasoline—equal to a railroad tank-car—and the bomber itself weighs as much as a locomotive.

But bigness isn't the only way in which the airplane industry is diving into a modern warplane must pass 45,000 separate inspections—and some of these parts must be accurate to one two-millionth of an inch, or 200 times finer than a spider's web.

A standard test for accuracy—and this will make any mechanic shudder—is to take four 14-cylinder engines, dismantle them, scramble their 22,000 parts in a single large box, and then re-assemble the four engines. They must, and do, run perfectly, notwithstanding the fact that each is using parts built into the other three—because the interchangeability of parts is a fundamental requirement of American aviation, best in the world.

Incidentally, American military aviation has a great deal to be thankful for to American automobiles and American civil aviation; for it was these that laid the groundwork of skilled mechanics from which the military edifice arose.

And it is interesting to note that all of every dollar in airplane sales 44 cents goes to shop labor.

Donations to Red Cross Hit $1,000 Mark

County Contributions Bolster Hope Funds Over Week-end

Rural contributions combined with Hope donations over the week-end to send the Hempstead Red Cross membership to well over the $1,000 mark.

Contributions of $107.24 were turned in Monday.

All county chairmen are urged to turn in their contributions to either Hope bank, the Red Cross office or to Miss Hattie Anne Feild.

The Spring Hill school donated $10.54 and contributions from the Blevins area amounted to $54.20.

S. W. Church Rally Here

Young People Will Convene at Tabernacle

Christ's Ambassadors (young people) groups from dozens of Southwest Arkansas towns will assemble at Hope Gospel Tabernacle Monday night at 7 o'clock for a quarterly rally of C. A. A. from the southwestern section.

Mrs. Agnes Stokes, of Conway, state president will preside. Among the many outstanding ministers to attend this meet will be Rev. Robt. Sellers, Hot Springs, state secretary of the Assemblies of God; Rev. T. J. Gotcher, assistant superintendent; Evangelist Bruce Greer of Houston, Texas; Rev. Satchel Vandover of Malvern, and Rev. A. W. Tanner of Camden, sectional presbyter.

C. A. A. groups are expected from dozens of southwest Arkansas towns including Camden, El Dorado, Malvern, Texarkana, Snackover, Arkadelphia, Gurdin, Prescott, Bearden, Ashdown and many others.

An outstanding feature on the program will be the singing of the many groups, including the wellknown Christ's Ambassadors radio quartet from North Little Rock.

Rev. J. E. Hamill, pastor and Horace Billings, C. A. president at the Tabernacle expressed the hope that all Hope young people avail themselves of this opportunity to enjoy a great young people's rally.

Amarillo, Other Texas Points Are Ice-Bound

All Communications Lines Down; 3.43 Inches Rainfall Here

DALLAS —(AP)—Meager reports from ice-bound Amarillo Monday said the freezing rain had stopped there, promising some relief from the storm which isolated the city and other communities in the Panhandle.

Highways and streets were littered with poles, wire, and trees while utility company repair crews struggled to restore the disrupted communication lines.

Radio amateurs from Lubbock and Dallas reported that they found it necessary to relay messages by way of Hawaii and points as far east as West Virginia, to Amarillo.

Simms Returns to Lineup

Bobcats Take on Pine Bluff Thanksgiving Day

The Hope High School Bobcats, winner of only one football game this season, will close a disastrous season here Thursday with the annual Thanksgiving day battle against the Pine Bluff Zebra's.

The Bobcats showed surprising strength last Friday night by holding North Little Rock to 13 points. The Wildcats had a huge weight advantage and the game was played in a sea of mud.

Chances for a win over the Zebra's Thursday were strengthened Monday with the announcement that Jimmy Simms, only holdover back from last season, and who was believed lost for the rest of the year, would be back in the lineup. Simms was injured in the Bobcat game October 4 and has seen action in only one game since that time. A special pass has been made for his shoulder and the doctor said it would be O. K.

Foy Hammons Jr., kept the Bobcats out of plenty of holes with his punting in the Wildcat game. The local's offense was almost ruined by the wet and soggy field and passes, which has been their means of progress all season, just couldn't click. Martindale was injured but is expected to be ready by Thursday.

The game will start promptly at 2:30 and admission will be 75c. (conference ruling).

Jack Fulkerson Stars for LSU Against Auburn

Jack Fulkerson, giant end who wound up his high school football career with the Bobcats Thanksgiving day, 1939, at Pine Bluff, was crashed into the spotlight as a sophomore end at Louisiana State University.

Fulkerson, 6 feet 4 inches tall, weighing 205 pounds, set up two LSU touchdowns in the Tiger's victory against Auburn November 16, played a whale of a defensive game—and is looked to as a LSU pillar of strength in the coming struggle with Tulane Saturday, November 30.

In the Auburn game Fulkerson recovered a fumble on the one-foot marker setting up the first LSU touchdown; and caught a pass to put the ball on the one-yard line, leading to the second tally.

To say that Louisiana is raving over Jack Fulkerson, is putting it mildly. The New Orleans Sunday Times-Picayune & States writes as follows:

"However, the boy who stole the spotlight (in the Auburn game) was Fulkerson. He held an obscure place among the LSU ends until today, but what he did against Auburn . . . etc. etc."

Fulkerson, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Tolleson, 1220 South Main street, during his years as a Hope High School student, now rooms with Jack Barrett, LSU's giant tackle, another sophomore, from Houston, Texas. Barrett, after the Auburn game, was voted a place on the Associated Press' sophomore-team-of-the-week in the Southeastern Conference.

Tanks Are Duck Soup for Tractor-Drivers From American Farms, Now Inducted Into the Army

How U. S. 'Panzer' Divisions Will Be Equipped

Mechanical Heritage of Americans Is Helpful

Willis Thornton, NEA Service staff correspondent, is on a flying tour of the main U. S. Army camps. This is one of the feature stories he is writing for The Star.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
FORT KNOX, Ky. — A complete mask of gray gumbo dust hid the face of the kid from southern Ohio as he hauled himself out of the turret of a light tank. He had to crack the dust mask with a smile to register satisfaction in this thought:

Three months ago he was driving a tractor on his father's farm. Today he is in command of a tank in an outfit that is at least the equal of any armored unit of equal size in the world.

American kids know and like machinery. Their grandfathers tinkered with bicycles. Their fathers mended the first one-lung autos around the block. Tanks are duck-soup for these boys.

The armored force of the United States is small as yet, but it is safe to say that no other country ever developed so good a mechanized unit so quickly. Lieut.-Col. Percy C. Black, who as assistant military attaché in Berlin watched the whole development of the German "panzer" divisions, is confident that they have nothing better than this U. S. first armored division, organized last July 10. There is a second at Fort Benning, Ga.; on March 15, a third will be ready, and June 15 a fourth, plus 10 general headquarters tank battalions.

11,500 Men, 19,000 Weapons

This kind of progress is possible only because officers can't shoo these kids away from the garages. Saturday afternoons and even Sundays, they'll be there, poking around the tanks, eager to get it all figured out, quick. They're observant and critical, and several minor improvements in the tanks have already been made as a result of their shrewd observations.

This first armored division in action is a grim thing to watch. Attacking a hypothetical enemy marked by targets drawn on a track across a distant hillside, 155 howitzer shells whir overhead to burst with dull detonations around the target, already spotted by flights of observation planes. Detachments of 30 and 50 caliber machine-guns whirl up in armored cars, dismount, slap their guns into position and spray the target with a shower of tracer bullets which ricochet at odd angles, hundreds of feet in the air. Suddenly great puff-clumps of smoke appear off at the right, so fired by howitzers that the smoke drifts directly across the front. Then come three successive waves of tanks, nosing their way like determined iron ferrets through the smoke, dust and brush. The concentration of fire ahead of these tanks is tremendous, for the 11,500 men of this division have at their disposal 19,000 weapons.

Having "captured" their objective, the tanks wheel back to the starting point, pausing to put out the grass and brush fires inevitably started by the tracer bullets. Rule is every crew puts out the blaze started by its own fire. The Fort Knox reservation has been recently enlarged enough so that there's plenty of room for this kind of exercise with ball ammunition, and even the small grass fires don't inconvenience anybody overmuch.

Back to the garages go the tanks, with the dust-masked soldiers happy in their mastery over a new and terrible gadget.

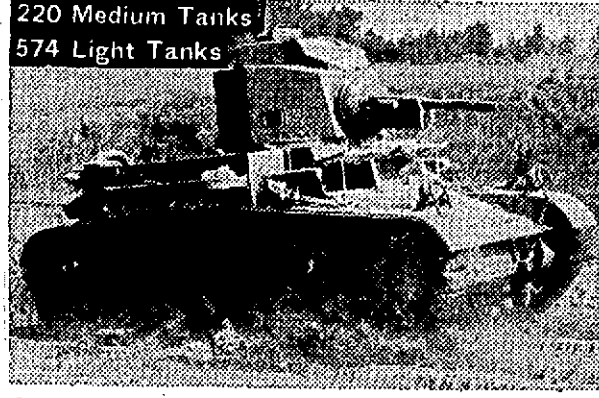

"Mae West" In The Army

Expensive playthings they are, too. You begin to get the idea when you realize that to fill just once all the gas tanks of all the vehicles of this armored division requires about 100,000 gallons of gasoline. The division is then good for about 100 miles on the road. Since the division strings out for nearly 60 miles while "on the march," it would take forever to "pull up at the pump" one at a time to refuel. So trucks speed down the hatted column dropping off drums of gasoline, which each vehicle then takes on individually.

To keep moving a super-gadget like this needs not only actual training, but also the kind of love for the machines that prompts the men to call a certain type of tank with twin circular turrets a "Mae West."

An elaborate system of schooling turns out 100 tank mechanics every 10 days, 800 radio operators in one "process" and a 5000-student "universality" of tank lore where only a few weeks ago stood a weed-patch. By next summer, 80,000 men will be trained in the kind of "panzer" warfare that served Germany so well in Poland and in France.

Drive Begins on Southern Italian Base

Fascist Troops Taken; Bulgaria Avoids Signing With Axis

ATHENS —(AP)—Dispatches from the battlefield said Monday that Greek advance units entered the outskirts of Argirocastro, main Italian military base of southern Albania, and that city was expected to fall before evening.

Heavy fighting was also reported southwest of Argirocastro, where the Greeks are threatening to push to the Adriatic coast, isolating a large number of Italians.

These thrusts are part of a counter-drive against thwarted Italian invasion which was described by military sources as a "full fledged offensive" intended to wrest Albania from Italian control and possibly keyed to a plan for Greek-British seizure of Italy's strategic Coocean Islands.

Greek sources said that casualties of both armies had been comparatively small and attributed this to the alleged failure of Italians to offer a stubborn resistance to the Greek attacks.

8,000 Italians Captured

LONDON —(AP)—The capture of 8,000 more Italian troops by the Greeks was announced in Athens Monday, according to a dispatch from the Greek capital to the Exchange Telegraph, British news agency.

Bulgaria Avoids Signing

SOFIA —(AP)—The belief that little Bulgaria had won her struggle to avoid being rushed in to signing the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact until the Greek-Turkish-Russian situation clarifies was expressed in official circles Monday.

"It now appears certain to us that Bulgaria will not be involved in war this winter," a high government official declared.

Axis Signing Pact Ended

BERLIN —(AP)—Informed sources made the surprising assertion Monday that Hungarian, Rumanian and Slovak signatures to the three-power pact ended the present series of acquisitions to the Axis.

They said that nothing was known as yet about Bulgarian leaders coming to Berlin. Bulgaria previously had been viewed as the most likely to become the seventh member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

RAF Raids Hamburg

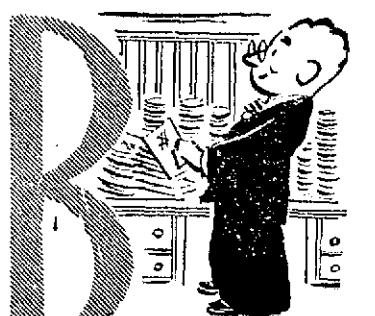

LONDON —(AP)—British bombers sniped a week-end smashing blow at the Axis by raiding Hamburg Sunday night while the Germans concentrated on a 100-plane attack on a town in western England, official reports said Monday.

The RAF carried its offensive anew to the German port, the biggest in Europe, by dumping bombs on the water front and vast oil refineries, the air ministry said.

The attack on a town in western England was said to have been carried out by German bombers coming virtually in continuous relays.

German Raid Bristol

BERLIN —(AP)—The German high command, reporting fresh successes against England by air and sea, declared Monday that the port of Bristol was subjected to another "Coven-tray" raid Sunday night and that Nazi sea raider operations "oversaw" had sunk 95,000 tons of British shipping. Hundreds of planes pounded Bristol, described as the chief port for entry of United States war supplies, for several hours with hundreds of thousands of pounds of explosives and fire bombs, the communique said.

The War Spreads

Like an ugly ink blot, the European war has spread in a little more than a year across the whole map of a continent.

It is hard to realize now that all this started over a border dispute over Danzig and the Polish corridor, just as the World War started in a dispute over responsibility for the murder of an archduke.

The dispute over Danzig might have been settled across the table, given the slightest good will, the slightest desire to settle it. But already whatever good will was left and been dissipated by the futile Munich effort at appeasement, the mounting evidence that Nazi Germany was not to be satisfied by mere amicable adjustments of borders.

And because there was not enough statesmanship, enough good will in all Europe to compromise a matter of access to the Baltic Sea, the conflict started which now spreads across all Europe.

More even than in 1914, the world is interdependent. And even then a dispute between Austria and Serbia eventually dragged a world to war. Today—

Within two days after the Danzig failure, Britain and France entered the war. Within two weeks, Russia was plunging into Poland for its share of the swag, and within two months it was invading Finland. Within seven months Denmark and Norway were gratefully mowed down, protesting their neutrality as they fell. Within nine months Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg followed. Before a year was out, Italy plunged in. The tenth month saw Russia partitioning Rumania, and Egypt was invaded just after the first year closed. With the fourteenth month Greece is likewise engulfed.

What is significant is this: of all these countries not more than one or two wanted war. Yet war was thrust upon them all.

Once war on this scale is unleashed, those fighting have only one objective—to win. Thus Greece, whose dictatorship under Metaxas was scarcely less oppressive than those of Germany or Russia, is welcomed as an ally of democratic England, just as the democracies welcomed autocratic Russia in 1914. Dictator Mussolini does not hesitate to try to crush Dictator Metaxas.

WE, THE WOMEN

Some Wishful-Thinking Women Just Can't Face Tough Facts

By RUTH MILLETT

"Age doesn't have anything to do with a woman's chances to marry—and marry well. The woman of 35 or 40 who has not yet married has just as good a chance to marry the type of man she wants as the girl of 25. In fact the mature woman of 40 is likely to have more appeal for men than a young girl."

That's bunk, isn't it? And yet it is what The Women are demanding that I write.

"They Didn't Fancy Facing Rude Facts"

Not long ago I wrote a frank—perhaps brutally frank—column advising the woman of 35 who has not yet married to be honest with herself regarding her prospects. I told her to stop telling herself that she was even more attractive to men than she was ten years ago, and if she just waited, the perfect man would come along.

If she wanted marriage, I said, then she should realize that she would probably have to be a little less exacting when looking over the field than she could have been ten, or even five, years before.

I didn't include women who had been married before, assuming that if they married no time getting one husband, they would waste no time getting a second, if they wanted a second.

But the women resented what I wrote. They didn't fancy facing such rude facts. They thought they could make the truth less true by blaming me for writing it. One woman even threatened to quit reading my column if I wrote anything like that again. Why Not Blame The Men?

If they want to blame anyone for these hard facts, why don't they blame the men? I haven't anything to do with the masculine weakness for youth and beauty or the fact that men seem seldom to reason. "A mature, intelligent, charming woman would make me a better wife than a pretty, fluffy young thing who hasn't yet fully grown up."

Every woman is bound to wish men didn't think youth in women was an irresistible asset. For every woman knows how brief is her period of youth.

But crying that it isn't so won't do any good. And if an unmarried woman kids herself into believing it is not so, she is in danger of letting the years slip by until she finds one day that people are saying, "It's strange she NEVER married."

Instead of "It's strange she HAS NOT married."

ideology lies the naked struggle for power, for survival.

Nov. 30 Is Last for Phosphate

Is Final Date to Obtain Phosphate and Lime

Phosphate and lime may be secured by all farmers up to November 30th. That is the final date for securing and distributing lime and phosphate for payment under the 1941 farm program. Orders placed with the county AAA office for phosphate and lime can be filled immediately.

The cost to the farmer who have a conservation check of less than $180 and who have not earned their soil building allowance is nothing if the balance will more than pay for the material. Each sack of phosphate to apply to conserving crops will pay $1.50 of the unearned allowance advises Oliver L. Adams, county agent. Agricultural limestone will be delivered in six ton loads to farmers that has as much as $12 unearned allowance which will let the farmer earn approximately $1 for spreading if the check is less than $180.

Terraces may be constructed up to November 30th and will earn 75c per one hundred feet.

These unearned allowances are going to take immediate action and we

Friday Music Club Meets on Friday Afternoon at the Home of Mrs. Hamill.

The Friday Music Club held its regular meeting on Friday afternoon, November 22, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Hamill with Mrs. Hendrix Spragins as co-hostess. The business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Dick Watkins. The afternoon's study on "The Creative Process in Music" from the book by Aaron Copland "What to Listen for in Music" was led by Mrs. Henry Haynes. Representative selections from four types of composers were presented. "Sonata" by Schubert was sung by Mrs. Dick Watkins with Miss Harriett Story as accompanist. "Lullaby" by Brahms was sung as a trio by Mrs. Harriett Story, Mrs. Kenneth L.

Personal Mention
Mr. and Mrs. Horace Whitten have returned to their home in Glade, Texas after a visit with Mr. Whitten's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Whitten Sr., and other relatives and friends in the city.

Mr. Matthew Reeves and little daughter, Pat, are the guests of Mrs.

Spore, and Mrs. J. C. Carlton, with Mrs. Basil York accompanying. Mrs. J. C. Carlton played French Suite in G-Major by Beethoven. The concluding number of the program was "Prelude" by Debussy played by Mrs. Basil York.

Miss Bemis Is Bride of C. R. Prewitt.

The First Presbyterian church of Prescott was beautifully decorated with Southern smilax and countless large chrysanthemums in rainbow shades for the Friday afternoon wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Bemis and Claudius Rowan Prewitt. The Rev. R. D. Nolen read the double ring ceremony at 4 o'clock.

Lighted cathedral candles burned in seven branched candelabra. Mrs. Warren Cummings, organist, played the nuptial music, including "Oh, Promise Me" by DeKoven, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" by Herbert, "At Dinning" by Cadman and "I Love You Truly" by Bond. The bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin" announced the bridal party.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Thomas C. McRae, was beautiful in her exquisite wedding gown of ivory slipper satin. The tight bodice had a square yoke and long sleeves. A giraffe and the very full hoop skirt ended in a long train. The bride's veil of illusion was held in place with a tiara of Alencon lace and extended beyond the train of the dress. She carried a prayer book topped with white orchids and showered with frezias.

The attendants to the bride were Miss Doris Glenn in blue, Miss Frances Mueller of Austin, Tex., in yellow, Mrs. Tom Cruise in pink and Mrs. Carroll Marsh of Decatur, Ga., in white. The bridesmaids wore light blue and the very full hoop skirt ended in a long train. The bride's veil of illusion was held in place with a tiara of Alencon lace and extended beyond the train of the dress. She carried a prayer book topped with white orchids and showered with frezias.

Judith Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Smith of Waterloo, and niece of the bride, in a frock of pink chiffon, and Master Chummi Ballard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. Ballard of Pine Bluff, and nephew of the bridegroom, carried the rings in lilacs. The flower girl, little Ann Smith, niece of the bride and another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, wore an Empire dress of pink chiffon.

A reception was given at the Hotel Loda after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Prewitt departed for a wedding trip to the Gulf coast. For traveling the bride wore a black dress with red coat, trimmed in skunk. Her hat and accessories were black. After the first of December, the couple will live at Arkadelphia, where Mr. Prewitt is connected with the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bemis and the late Horace E. Bemis. She received her high school and junior college education at Gulf Park College, Gulfport, Miss. She attended the University of Arkansas, where she received her law degree.

His non-commissioned officers, as well as regular officers, will carefully inspect the condition of his uniform and his rifle.

When clothing supplies are issued to the draftee, he will be carefully measured and the sizes will be recorded, so that replacements for worn-out articles can easily be supplied. The draftee is given clothes valued by the government at $87.08.

The articles are two waist belts made of webbing, one leather belt, one olive drab field cap, two olive drab serge coats, one corded hat, seven pairs of drawers, one pair of woolen gloves, six white cotton handkerchiefs, one denim work hat, two denim work jumpers, two pairs of canvas leggings, two cotton khaki neckties, one raincoat, one live duck wool overcoat, two wool and two cotton shirts, one pair of garrison and two pairs of service shoes, eight cotton or wool socks, three pairs of cotton trousers, two pairs of wool trousers, two pairs of denim work trousers and nine cotton or woolen undershirts.

Hollywood Sees Hand of George Brent in Salary Sit-Down Ann Sheridan's Staging

HOLLYWOOD — Behind the scenes they say that in football when an irresistible force meets an immovable object, the result is time out. It's the same with the salary squabble between Ann Sheridan and her studio; neither side will yield, and she remains on suspension.

An attempt was made to arrange an "accidental" meeting between her and a studio executive which could have saved face for both of them and maybe led to a peace talk. But Annie didn't show up.

Hollywood is inclined to blame George Brent for coaching her into this sit-out strike. He did the same for Bette Davis when they were romancing, and the dramatical went broke fighting the studio in court.

Lucille Ball, who has been dithering over the Cuban song-and-dance boy, Desi Arnaz, ever since they worked together in "Too Many Girls," almost choked on a line she had to speak in "The Girls and a Gob." It was a contemptuous remark that "Latinas are lousy lovers" and it was written into the script merely to rib the actress. Miss Ball didn't know that the Hays office won't pass the word "lousy."

With a new contract being written for her at RKO, Ginger Rogers isn't so sure she wants to be just an

When Miss Rogers went to see the rushes she was horrified as her solo tapping cluttered like cavalry crossing a bridge. When she struck a pose and arched a leg to begin a dance, she creaked like a dry axle of a wagon. Her leaps ended with heavy thuds, and the finale brought a crash of dishes and a blackout.

Expansion Causes Promotion of Zone Managers

FLINT, Mich.—Expansion of the Buick field sales organization, involving promotions and changes in two zones, was announced Monday by W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager.

J. B. Nash, for the past year zone manager in Chicago, has been promoted to special regional assignment. Mr. Nash formerly was manager of the Buffalo zone having been transferred to Chicago a year ago in a similar sales organization change.

Succeeding Nash to the Chicago post is C. E. Childers, former zone manager at Kansas City and before that head of the Milwaukee sales territory.

J. W. Waddell, formerly assistant zone manager in Kansas City becomes manager of that zone and will be assisted by R. T. Burleigh, who has been promoted from the position of district representative in the same zone.

All of the men affected are experienced sales executives. Nash after many years of automobile retailing on the Pacific coast, joined Buick in 1933 as a district manager and was made Buffalo zone manager in 1934.

Childers joined General Motors in 1923, subsequently entering the wholesale field in Minneapolis where he again became associated with the corporation as a district manager in 1932. In 1934 he joined Buick as a district manager and in the same year was made assistant zone manager in Minneapolis. Two years later he was made Milwaukee zone manager and in August 1938 was transferred to head of the Kansas City zone.

Waddell followed a number of years of automobile retailing by joining the Buick field organization as a district manager in the Kansas City zone in 1934. He was made car distributor of that zone in 1937 and became assistant manager a year ago.

Burleigh's service with Buick began in 1934 as a parts and service representative in the Chicago zone. He was made a district sales representative two years later and transferred to the Milwaukee zone, from where he was shifted to the Kansas City territory last year.

Dean Accused of Killing Doe

Lake Village Aroused by Pitcher's Violation

LITTLE ROCK — The state Game & Fish commission will offer to assist the Chicot County Game Commission, a separate regulatory body, in prosecuting Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, for killing a doe in Chicot county. Secretary D. N. Guevres said over the week-end. A warrant for Dean's arrest was issued Friday.

Mr. Guevres said the state commission, through its cooperative agreement with federal agencies, will ask federal game wardens to arrest Dean, if the Chicot commission desired. If the warden who issued the warrant can prove his charge, Dean could be prosecuted under the Lacey act, which prohibits the interstate shipment of game killed illegally. Dean is reported to be in Dallas, Tex.

Dean, pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, is expected to return here either December 7 or 8 to answer a charge of shooting a doe. Sheriff Calmes Merritt said Sanford Sandusky, father-in-law of Paul Dean, "Dizzy's" brother, had assured him, "Dizzy" Dean was reported to have placed the carcass on his car and driven off after killing the doe.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Dean and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dean were camping with Mr. Sandusky at Mazon lake, seven miles north of Lake Village, when the alleged violation was committed. "Dizzy" Dean now is in Dallas, Tex.

YESTERDAY, Ronnie's sharp-shooting helped Officer Starr capture the men who had shot at her plane. Telling the story to Ronnie's father, Starr explains that the men were not alone, but American citizens. Bailey, however, they may have been interested in the bombing tests to be held soon. Starr agrees.

WES IS UP IN THE AIR

CHAPTER VII

"I HAVE asked you to come in," Dr. Woodrow Wesley York was saying, "because it is a faculty ruling that we make a first-week check of our students. Miss Bailey, Pueblo University always maintains close touch with its registrants, to assist them in every way. Have you found your courses satisfactory? What you hoped they might be?"

"Oh, yes, Dr. York!" Ronnie Bailey had a way of saying "Oh, yes." She emphasized the yes, made it a sound of enthusiasm and gratitude so that it was distinctly complimentary. Dr. York looked up from his record book at her.

"Ah—quite so," he murmured then, inadequately. Miss Bailey always distracted him.

"And Dr. York, I'm sorry I got myself talked about. Am I to be punished? Daddy said I ought to be skinned for—"

"Miss Bailey, you are regarded as an adult here, which of course you are. Pueblo does not 'punish.' Of course, certain disciplinary measures have to be invoked from time to time, but your—ah—episode with the airplane and the Border Patrol was distinctly your own affair, and not reprehensible in the slightest, so far as I can see."

"Mr. Starr says that it demonstrates the need for additional autogiro planes in the border service. With only three autogiros now, more should be added as rapidly as—"

"Do you like to fly, Dr. York?" "I beg pardon?"

"Yes! Do you?"

"Way, ah—no. That is, I have never once been in—"

"Goodness, Dr. York, you ought to be ashamed! This isn't the covered wagon era. This is 1940!"

"Quite so, Miss Bailey. But my scholastic pursuits—"

"Oh, p-s-s-s-s-s!" She hissed at the idea, wrinkling her nose, then winked impersonally before she talked on. "Listen here, Dr. York, the kids all say you are very human, really."

"They—they—how was that?" He put down his record book, and frowned, incredulous, through his hair-parted spectacles.

"The older students say you are a swell sort if you'd let yourself be, and you're not broken down in years. Now listen—you're going flying with me today!"

"Why, aw, Miss Bailey, I—"

"Come on! Classes are over for the day and it's still just 3:30. Come on, Dr. York! Don't be a droop!"

"A—droop." He echoed it. Droop. It was new in his vocabulary of recognized slang. Droop. Latently, one was not expected to droop. If one would exert proper influence over the students. And the university president had said that he, a very young Ph.D., should perhaps be closer to the student activities than any other faculty man. The thought of flying—and Miss Bailey's unmistakably charming manner and, ah, her lips—

"Good! I knew you'd go. It's too lovely an afternoon to waste in an office anyway. Now my car is right outside and—"

SHE maneuvered him as she might have bossed her plane itself, guiding him and making him feel like a scholar. Before the scholarly young gentleman realized it he was skimming over the road at 60, and when he became rational, he was skimming over New Mexico at 160. In abject awe he looked down.

"Not over 4000 feet," she answered his thoughts, shouting in his ear. "Like it?" Her grin was impish.

"Oh, quite!"

"Good! We'll coast some."

Sliding, loafing along up high, motor idling, enabled them to talk more easily. Ronnie noted that his somewhat pale, indolent skin had taken on a pink glow of exhilaration. Also, he had taken his glasses off.

"It's surprising how much different you look," she said.

"I beg pardon?"

"Without your glasses, I mean. You look so much nicer. No, I don't mean that, Dr. York. I mean younger. Of course you look nice with them."

"I—ah, thank you, I—"

"What I mean is, you should get smaller frames, I think. These are too heavy. Do you have to wear them?"

"Only when I read, but one gets into a habit, and—"

"That's all of that, then. You start leaving them off."

He looked at her with raised eyebrows. Here was a girl, a student, actually ordering him! Giving him personal commands. It wasn't done in a university, he felt. He couldn't be liked if it was distinctly pleasant, and it made sense.

"THERE'S a dance Saturday night," she suddenly announced.

"Quite so."

"Stop it!" she commanded, gaily. "Quite so" is something to say when you turn 50 years, Dr. York. Can't you be yourself?"

He was shocked again, and looked it.

"I—I—you—"

She laughed happily, musically. "You're funny but I like you, really. I think you haven't been any too happy. Have you?"

"I—yes. That is—"

"Will you take me to the dance Saturday, Dr. York?"

She might have shot a gun. Or power dived or looped a loop or, say, slapped him. No matter; it couldn't have astonished him as much as what she had said. His own voice, though, was paralyzed now.

"The kids say you have been girl shy," she went on, eyes-dancing, "but the truth is, you're awfully good-looking and you're not as old as you think you are. I told some of the girls I bet I could break you out of your shell."

Still he could say nothing.

"Mind if I drop the 'Doctor'? I mean outside the classroom, of course. How about 'Wesley'? What do your intimate friends call you?"

"W-Wes." He finally croaked that.

"Wes. It's okay—Wes! It's human. Here, you want to handle the controls some? Seriously, I'm not trying to flirt with you. I never flirt. I despise flirts, Wes. I'm just trying to stir you awake and I hope you don't get mad at me. Now grasp this lever first, and—"

GET mad at her!

Get mad at Ronnie Bailey. Poor Wes York, at once miserable and exalted, had no words despite his broad vocabulary. Get mad at her! Never! The girl spoke truth! He knew it, and in him was an almost frantic crying out of gladness, a welcoming of her frank comradeship, this vivacious, impulsive girl had suddenly brought life to him.

"Miss Bailey—that is, Ronnie—I am both literally and figuratively up in the clouds, but I certainly shall take you to the dance! I—in fact, I was about to ask you myself!"

He wondered what gave him the temerity to utter that last falsehood. But no matter; he felt a powerful new stimulant streaming through his veins.

Stiffer Income, Excess Profits Levies on Way

WASHINGTON — A general overhauling of the federal tax structure is almost inevitable this winter, and stiffer income and excess profits tax levies are in the cards.

The administration has not yet formulated the tax program it will set before congress, but one thing is perfectly obvious; the government has got to have more money.

A record deficit is being created in this fiscal year. Tax revenues from all sources will run to about $6,300,000,000, while expenditures will go above $12,000,000,000. Next year's expenditures will almost certainly be as high as that, if not higher.

As the national income rises the present tax set-up will give a bigger yield. How much bigger, no one knows. Treasury opinion is that the increase wouldn't be nearly enough, and that higher levies are imperative.

Any Deflationary Steps Opposed

There is no thought of seeking to put the government on a pay-as-you-go basis. Secretary Morgenthau like most other administration leaders, opposes any really deflationary step just as full recovery seems to be taking hold. Right now Treasury experts are inclined to feel that about a billion is all that could be added to the "make."

Probably the first item on the administration's program will be a strengthening of the excess profits tax. The President is highly dissatisfied with the tax that was hurried through congress this summer. He had asked for a steeply graduated bill to prevent the creation of war mil-lionaires, what he got was a set of fairly mild rates plus an alternative method of computing the taxes which in the Treasury's opinion, gives a notorious advantage to corporations, which happened to make good profits in the last few years.

Hence the administration will ask that the rates be stiffened, and that computation of the tax be permitted only on the basis of invested capital.

Income Tax Boost May Face Fight

Higher income taxes are also in the cards. Present talk in the Treasury suggests a boost in the normal rate, possibly from the present 4 per cent to 5 or 6 per cent. Personal exemptions and credits may be reduced, although the administration opposes too much lengthening of the tax base for fear of cutting consumer purchasing power.

It's quite possible the administration won't get its way on the income tax boost without a hard fight in congress. There's considerable feeling there in favor of boosting the special 10 per cent defense-tax levy on income taxes in place of hiking the normal rates, the idea being that the defense tax is clearly temporary, but that once a normal rate is raised it tends to stay raised.

Nuances favor on gasoline, cigarette, theater tickets, etc., are due to be kept. New sources of tax revenue will be sought. One current suggestion would put a special tax on soft drinks. Such a tax during the World War brought in $500,000,000 and the Government is that with greatly increased consumption now, it'd be good for twice that much.

There is also some sentiment in the new idea for trying to put into the tax bill various related financial features desired by the administration. These would include, in addition to the specific increases, the raising of the debt limit to $60,000,000,000 and the elimination of tax exemptions on securities. The latter item will probably kick up such a fight though that it may get put in a bill by itself.

vice of covered workers. In other words, the period of military service will be blocked out and the individual rights will be exactly the same as though the period of time during which his military service was performed were completely erased from the record; his employment record and unemployment benefit rights would remain intact for all periods of time not included in his military service, without any additions or subtractions for the periods of time covered by military service. Since military service is not covered employment, it could not properly serve as a basis for increased benefit rights under state unemployment compensation laws.

"The Executive Committee recognized that serious consideration is apparently being given to the possibility that the Federal Congress may provide some system of unemployment allowances for individuals as they are mustered out of the military service. The committee recommended that if such laws are passed they be administered through the established state employment security agencies and that provisions be made to prevent conflict or overlapping between state and federal laws."

"It is fully recognized by the Committee," concluded Mr. Collins' summary, "that additional state and federal legislation will be necessary to effectuate these recommendations, and the Committee urges that all state legislatures give the matter their serious study and action as soon as possible after their first reconvening."
